Paying for College

Financial Aid
Financial aid is available for eligible students. Students and their families do not necessarily need to be considered low-income to qualify for some kinds of financial aid, but students must demonstrate financial need to be eligible for federal assistance.

Even if you’re receiving financial assistance from agency sources (L&I, VA, DVR, WorkSource, WorkFirst), you may be eligible for additional grant aid from state and federal financial aid sources. We determine eligibility by comparing the difference between the cost of attending school and what you and your family can afford to pay.

Apply Early
Students are encouraged to apply for financial aid as early as possible since pre-qualification may take up to eight weeks from your application submission date. Award of financial aid notification is by mail and begins in the month of July.

Eligibility for Financial Aid
A student maybe eligible for financial aid if he or she is:
- Attending Bates to obtain a degree or certificate
- A U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen
- Making satisfactory progress in a program of study, as defined by the institution’s satisfactory progress criteria
- Not in default on any previous student loans or owing a refund on any grant
- Registered for the draft with Selective Service, if required by law
- A high school graduate, a GED completer, or earn passing scores on the COMPASS exam

To apply visit www.bates.ctc.edu/financialaid.

Scholarships
The Bates Foundation can help students pay for their education! Scholarship offerings vary from quarter to quarter, and the Bates Technical College Foundation encourages new and current students to apply for scholarships every quarter. Individual awards range from $100 to $1,000 per quarter.

Applications are available online at www.bates.ctc.edu/foundation.
Step foot into any modern machine or manufacturing shop, and chances are you’ll find computer numerical control (CNC) machines. The equipment that increases accuracy and efficiency, and allows parts to be cut at a high speed in a short amount of time has become an integral part of the manufacturing and machining industry.

To help meet the training needs of this evolving industry, Bates will offer a two-quarter CNC Operator certificate program. The first quarter begins Nov. 28. Students will learn to use a variety of machine tools, including CNC equipment. Participants learn to make metal parts to precise specifications, and gain knowledge of the working properties of metal, capabilities of machine tools and equipment, and standard shop practices that prepares students for employment in all types of factories, industries and maintenance shops.

Upon successful completion, students will receive a CNC Operator Certificate of Training. Students may be eligible for tuition-free training through Workforce Central. Contact Career Advisor LeaEllen Maass at 253.680.7007, lmaass@bates.ctc.edu to learn more about the program, and to find out if you qualify for tuition assistance through Workforce Central.

Quarter One
 Begins 11/28, DTC-M101, 7 a.m.-2:30 p.m., 23 cr.

Quarter Two
 Begins 2/23, DTC-M101, 7 a.m.-2:30 p.m., 21 cr.

Lisa Mostafa, Hearing Instrument Technology

From Hair to Hear

Licensed cosmetologist Lisa Mostafa first considered a career change in 2010 when she separated from her husband.

The mother of a five-year-old boy, Lisa had been working as a hair stylist since 1993 and wanted to secure a better living for her family.

At first, she thought she’d enter the medical field as a nurse. “I was gearing up to pursue my nursing credentials and realized I was in my mid-40s, and it would take more time than I had to give,” said Lisa.

She then began to explore the field of hearing instrument technology. “During the last five years of my father’s life, he needed hearing aids,” said Lisa. “This experience piqued my interest in the field, so I started talking with people in the industry.”

Through her research, she discovered Bates.

“Bates is one of only two colleges that offer the Hearing Instrument Technology program in the entire nation,” said Lisa, who enrolled in the program spring 2011.

“One of the things I enjoy most is working with my peers. I am full of respect for them,” she said. “It’s a small group, and we work well together. I also appreciate the one-on-one instruction. [Instructor Dr. Marci Leong] is super knowledgeable and very approachable. She’s always here for us,” she added.

The Hearing Instrument Technology program will prepare Lisa for the state license exam she will take when she graduates with her associate of technology degree summer 2012.

Our English as a Second Language (ESL), Adult Basic Education (ABE) and General Education Development (GED) preparation classes help those who need to improve mathematics, reading, and writing skills. Classes transition to general education classes as skills improve. In some fields, adults can start career education programs while enrolled in ABE/ESL classes. GED preparation classes help students prepare to take the required five tests for high school equivalency. Bates offers ABE, GED, and ESL classes at the Downtown and South Campuses, and at these off-campus locations:

Mercy Housing Tacoma Hillside (ESL)
1805 South ‘G’ St., Tacoma

General Education
To satisfy degree and certificate requirements, students need to complete certain general education (GE) classes. Career advisors and faculty can help you create an education plan that will keep you on track for your goals. Contact a career advisor for more information on course descriptions and prerequisites.

General education classes are open to career education students, high school students and others pursuing college credit or preparatory goals and include college-level and college-preparatory courses. COMPASS scores and the course work help determine prerequisites you need to complete. Some students may need to build basic skills in mathematics, reading or writing before taking a general education course.

Associate degrees and certificates of competency require completion of a specific number and distribution of pre-college and college-level GE classes. Requirements vary depending upon the career education program, the credential, and the track a student chooses to pursue. Each career education program has a unique delivery plan that identifies the quarters in which students should take general education classes.

Sal McGowan, Fire Service
Focus on Fire

Sal McGowan is a marine mechanic by trade. The Navy veteran and father of three had been working aboard ships since 1996 and as a mechanic for luxury yachts since 2000.

When the economy went south and his job at the boat repair company ended, he decided to pursue his dream to become a firefighter.

“I told my wife, ‘I’m going to be a firefighter.’ I had heavy equipment repair experience, mechanic experience. I needed a job that was going to be in demand—I couldn’t rely on the economy to support my family,” said Sal.

Sal McGowan
Focus on Fire

So in 2010, he applied for assistance to help pay for tuition, books and supplies, spoke with representatives at the college, and began his journey toward becoming a firefighter.

“I was 33 years old at the time, and I had one more life change in me. Go big or go home,” he said. “I put in my paperwork, said my prayers, and everything was approved.” Sal began the program fall quarter.

In addition to the full-time program, Sal takes evening Emergency Medical Technician courses, and volunteers at the North Olympia Fire and Rescue District 7 to apply the knowledge and skills he learns in the program.

“If it wasn’t for my wife supporting me, I don’t think I’d be able to accomplish this,” said Sal. “I leave the house at 6:30 a.m., and sometimes won’t get home until midnight. On the days I volunteer, I won’t see my kids Monday through Friday.”

Sal’s dedication, drive and hard work will pay off when he graduates winter 2012 with an associate of technology degree, and his EMT, Firefighter I, II, Wildland and Emergency Vehicle Incident Prevention certifications.

This winter, Bates Technical College students will help spread holiday cheer at the Northwest’s largest drive-through light display.

The 16th annual Fantasy Lights at Spanaway Park features a small fleet of gingerbread kids that swing, seesaw and skip rope on the lighted holiday playground, built and assembled by a group of Bates students. With some fixtures reaching as high as 14 feet, these new displays will greet cars as they travel through the sparkling park.

For 15 years, Bates students in the welding, electronic equipment service, biomedical equipment repair and commercial truck driving career education programs have added fun, colorful and unique displays to this dazzling drive-through light show that has become a Northwest family tradition.

Don’t miss this spectacular holiday light display.
